

Arndell
Anglican College

Head of Junior School Prep to Year 6

Arndell Anglican College is a vibrant, P-12 Christ-centred learning community, through which Jesus is made known. The College prides itself on our high-quality pastoral care, academic development, and Christian programs. For our staff this means that we are driven by a passion to know who we are as a community and to do what we do well.

Situated on 30 acres between Rouse Hill and Windsor, Arndell caters for a growing population of almost 1300 students with over 500 of these students sitting within the Junior School (Prep to Year 6). Students are encouraged to grow in their individual abilities and interests within a learning environment that promotes optimism, respect, and ownership.

The Invitation

Due to the retirement of the current Head of Junior School; Keith Peterson, Arndell Anglican invites applications for the position, commencing 2024.

Our next Head of Junior School will be a strong Christian leader who will respect what has been achieved yet is able to build on this work with the College Executive and the Junior School Leadership Team, taking the Junior School further forward in its learning, pastoral care and wellbeing, and Christian programs. The Head of Junior School reports to the Headmaster, is a member of the College Executive and provides strategic and operational leadership to the Junior School within the vision of the whole P-12 College.

About You

As the leader of the Junior School you will demonstrate excellent leadership capabilities to build a Junior School that drives high quality teaching outcomes whilst retaining a clear focus on developing the whole child. You bring experience that is both broad and deep in understanding current educational issues, curriculum development, pedagogical theory, and management of behaviours.

With expertise and enthusiasm to lead the learning and teaching program for Prep to Year 6, your collaborative style and nurturing nature will see not only students grow but also staff grow in their practice. You will be a confident communicator who can build culture and community within a diverse and dynamic environment.
