Foundation Principal Marsden Park Anglican College, Sydney

The Board of The Anglican Schools Corporation invites applications for the position of Foundation Principal of Marsden Park Anglican College.

Our Marsden Park campus was established in 2016 as a part of Richard Johnston Anglican School and is poised to enrol secondary students next year, becoming a separate school from the beginning of 2024. It will be known as Marsden Park Anglican College.

Currently having over 400 primary students, Marsden Park is known for its excellent pastoral care, strong sense of community, spacious grounds, contemporary facilities, and talented staff who are deeply committed to our Christian values. As the population of the area continues to experience rapid growth and we extend to Year 12, we anticipate the College reaching 1,200 students.

The Foundation Principal of Marsden Park Anglican College will bring energy, enthusiasm and inspiring leadership to building the College's educational and cultural identity, while forging strong connections between the College and the surrounding community. As the College grows, they will work closely with the newly established Council and The Anglican Schools Corporation to further develop the master and strategic plans. As a highly visible and authentic leader, they will foster close relationships with students, families and staff.
